Pope: Saints call us to look to God, make masterpieces of our lives

Addressing over eighty thousand faithful filling Saint Peter's Square on Sunday for the Mass with the canonization of Pier Giorgio Frassati and Carlo Acutis, Pope Leo XIV says the examples of these two young Saints invite all of us, especially young people, to direct our lives upwards to God and make them masterpieces of holiness, service, and joy.

Pier Giorgio Frassati, beacon for lay spirituality Describing the life of Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati, a young Italian man of the early 20th century, his participation in Catholic associations and service to the poor, the Pope said that also today "Pier Giorgio's life is a beacon for lay spirituality," since faith was not a private matter and could be lived in community in with membership in ecclesial associations and through generous commitment to political life and service to the poor.

Feast Day 12th October

the witness of young Italian Saint Carlo Acutis, a teenager of our own day, the Pope spoke about how he encountered Jesus in his family, thanks to his parents, Andrea and Antonia, recalling their presence at this celebration along with his two siblings, Francesca and Michele. Saint Carlo also found and lived his faith through school, but especially the sacraments celebrated in the parish community, the Pope went on to say, noting how "he grew up naturally integrating prayer, sport, study and charity into his days as a child and young man."

From 'Vatican News' (7/9/25) - when Pope Leo XIV named First Millennial Saint, Carlo Acutis. Carlo, who died at 15, was canonized alongside Pier Giorgio Frassati, who also died young.
